

KING TAKES OATH AS PREMIER OF CANADA

Ottawa, Ont., Dec. 28.—William Lyon Mackenzie King, elected premier of Canada on the liberal tidal wave at the general election December 6, took the oath of office today in the presence of Baron Byng of Vimy, Governor General of the Dominion.

The new premier announced the following cabinet appointments:

Minister of finance, William S. Fielding, of Nova Scotia; minister without portfolio and solicitor general, Daniel D. MacKenzie of Nova Scotia; secretary of state, A. B. Cope of New Brunswick; minister without portfolio, Raoul Dandurand of Quebec; minister of health and soldiers' re-establishment, Henri S. Bland of Quebec; minister of justice, Sir Louis Gouin of Quebec; minister of customs and excise, Jacques Bureau of Quebec; minister of marine and fisheries, Ernest Lapointe of Quebec; minister of trade and commerce, James A. Robb of Quebec; minister of militia and defense, P. Graham of Ontario; postmaster general, Charles Murphy of Ontario; minister without portfolio, Thomas A. Low of Ontario; minister of railways and canals, William C. Kennedy of Ontario; minister of labor, James Murdoch, of Ontario; minister of agriculture, William R. Motherwell of Saskatchewan; minister of the interior, mines and superintendent general of Indian affairs, Charles Stewart of Alberta; and minister of public works, Hewitt Bostock of British Columbia.

The new premier was sworn in only a few hours after it was announced suddenly that the Mackenzie cabinet would hold its final session today.

Mr. King will have a strong liberal backing in parliament, for at the election in which the government was overthrown, the liberals elected 117 members, the progressives 65, the conservatives (unionists) 57 and laborites 2.

The tariff issue played an important part in the election. The liberal form favored a tariff for raw materials and a return toward reciprocity in national products with the United States. The Mackenzie government stood for a high tariff.

The new premier is a former minister of labor and an expert on domestic labor matters. He is a graduate of the University of Toronto, and also studied at Harvard, the University of Chicago and abroad. He was once an instructor in political economy at Harvard. Later he became an editorial writer on the Toronto Globe. He has been a government conciliator in numerous labor disputes.

SUNSHINE AVENUE

Lose your way or find your way, or how you twist or turn, Come back to Sunshine Avenue, where all the candles burn;

The candles of the Happy Heart that for all travelers gleam Above the path of melody in holy lands of dream.

On every step the children dance, and sing in every lane; And every door of every house is open, sun or rain; And welcome rings to those who stray from shadow and from tears

To find the Sunshine Avenue that brightens half our years.

Give up your cot on Grumble Hill and come to this sweet place;

Sell off your home of Grouchiness and wear the smiling face;

For through the world in song and joy, with music and with dew

Runs up the hill and down the dale love's Sunshine Avenue
